Is KUMPULAN FIMA a value trap?

SUMMARY

- Despite the growth in revenue over the past 12 years, Kumpulan FIMA Berhad's (KFIMA or the Group) (KFIMA:6491.MY) profitability declined due to shrinking gross profit margins and increased Selling, General, and Administration expenses.
- Financially sound, KFIMA has positive cash flow from operations, a good capital allocation plan, a low debt-equity ratio, and a sustainable reinvestment rate.

- Valued conservatively, KFIMA offers a significant margin of safety. This was based on a share price of RM1.82 per share compared to its Asset Value and Earnings Power Value.

INVESTMENT THESIS

KFIMA has not achieved any revenue growth over the past 12 years. But this was due to the loss of a major supply contract. The Group had managed to offset this by growing the business in the 3 other segments – Plantation, Food, and Bulking. The returns with the current business profile have yet to reach the levels of that before the loss of the supply contract. But the Group is making progress.

The Group is fundamentally sound. It has managed to deliver returns greater than the cost of capital. At the same time, based on the market price of RM1.82 per share, there is a sufficient margin of safety based on both the Asset Value and Earnings Power Value.

BACKGROUND

Today, KFIMA is a diversified group with 4 core business divisions - Manufacturing, Plantation, Bulking, and Food. They have also expanded beyond Malaysia to Indonesia and Papua New Guinea.

- Manufacturing: The Group is the largest domestic security printer in Malaysia. It has a wide range of products and services eg. travel documents and licenses. The Group also operates Malaysia's only banknote printing plant.

- Plantation: KFIMA is involved in the development, cultivation, and management of oil palm and pineapple estates. The Group currently owns and operates estates in Malaysia and Indonesia.
- Bulking: The Group's Bulking division operates five liquid bulk terminals. Three of them are located in Port Klang while the other two are in Butterworth. This division handles and stores various types of liquids. It also provides transportation and forwarding services.
- Food: This division manufactures and distributes canned fish in Papua New Guinea. It also provides third-party food packaging services.

The Group's revenue has grown over the past 12 years with each division contributing different growth as can be seen from the chart below.

- By 2020, the Manufacturing division revenue had shrunk to 18% of the Group's revenue compared to 43% in 2012. This division's revenue had been growing until 2017/18 when it lost a major supply contract.
- The revenue for the other 3 divisions has grown so that by 2023 they seemed to have about similar contribution to the Group's revenue.

To give you a sense of the size and returns achieved by each of the business segments, I looked at the past 12 years' time-weighted average revenue and EBIT. I then estimated the 2023 total capital employed (TCE) defined as "equity + debt – cash".

Chart 2 shows the Manufacturing segment delivered the best return as measured by the EBIT/TCE. The Plantation business achieved the worst return even though it employed the largest capital. At the same time, the returns from cash and securities were not significant to offset the inter-co eliminations.

OPERATING TRENDS

I looked at 3 metrics to get an overview of the overall performance – revenue, PAT, and gross profitability (gross profits / total assets). Refer to Chart 3.

- The bulk of the revenue growth came over the past 2 years.
- PAT and gross profitability showed a declining trend.

Over the past 12 years, while the Group’s revenue has grown, the profits have declined. Excluding the 2 extraordinary events (Indonesia land title issue and the loss of a supply contract), the declining profits were due to:

- A decline in the gross profit margins. Refer to Table 1.
- An increase in the Selling, General, and Administration expenses both in terms of dollar terms as well as % of the revenue as illustrated in Table 1.

Note: Refer to the original articles for details of the Indonesia land title issue and the loss of a supply contract

Items	2012 to 2014	2021 to 2023
Average EBIT/Revenue
- Manufacturing	27%	10%
- Plantation	33%	28%
- Food	12%	8%
- Bulking	57%	42%
Average gross profit margin	44%	41%
Average SGA (RM m)	91,340	133,721
Average SGA margin	19%	22%

Table 1: Comparative performance

FINANCIAL POSITION

I would rate KFIMA as financially sound based on the following reasons:

- As of Sep 2023, the Group had RM301 million in cash and securities. This is about 18% of the total assets.
- As of Sept 2023, the Group had a debt-equity ratio of 0.26. While low, it is the past 12 years high. Its lowest debt-equity ratio was in 2014 at 0.01. The increase was due to the lease liabilities for the leasehold land.

- Over the past 12 years, the Group has generated positive cash flow from operations every year. Cumulatively it generated about RM1.2 billion of cash compared to the RM1.0 billion PAT. This is a reasonable cash conversion ratio.
- The Group had a good capital allocation plan as shown in Table 2. Over the past 12 years, the cash flow from operations was invested to grow the business (CAPEX and acquisitions) as well as pay dividends.
- The Group has an average 26% reinvestment rate. “Reinvestment = CAPEX + Acquisitions – Depreciation + Changes in Net Working Capital”. This meant that only 26% of the after-tax operating profit needed to be reinvested to grow the business. The balance of 74% of free cash flow can be returned to shareholders.

VALUATION

There was hardly any revenue growth over the past 12 years as the Group lost a lucrative travel contract. The Group had to rebuild the revenue by growing the revenue from the other business segments. It had managed to achieve this.

My investment thesis is that KFIMA has a turnaround and its Earnings-based value would depend on how you see the turnaround play out. In this context, I took a conservative approach and valued it based on its Earnings Power Value. In other words, I ignored growth.

At the same time, KFIMA has understated investment properties amounting to RM18 million. I have also ignored this in my Asset Value.

Chart 4 illustrates the valuation of KFIMA. At the market price of RM1.82 per share (as of 4 Dec 2023) there is more than a 30% margin of safety for both Asset Value and EPV.

- The Asset Value is RM3.33 per share.
- The EPV is RM3.51 per share.

VALUATION MODEL

My Earnings Power Value of the company was derived based on the average derived from 2 valuation methods:

- A single-stage Free Cash Flow to the Firm (FCFF) model as per Damodaran.
- The Residual income model as per Penman.

The cost of capital used in the model was based on the Capital Asset Pricing Model. I followed Damodaran's approach to determine the Beta and the risk premiums.

CONCLUSION

My analysis of KFIMA showed that there was no growth in revenue over the past 12 years. But this was due to a loss of a major contract that was offset by growth in other businesses.

While it also had some land title disputes over the Indonesian plantation land, the Group had provided for this impairment. The Group has also built up a strong bulking business.

I would rate the Group as fundamentally sound. Excluding the security manufacturing business, the other 3 segments are not sunset sectors. They have growth potential.

On top of these, there is more than a 30% margin of safety based on the Asset Value and Earnings Power Value. Given these, I would conclude that at RM1.82 per share (as of 4 Dec 2023), KFIMA is not a value trap.

I am a long-term value investor who has held onto stocks for more than 5 years. My analysis and valuation are from such a perspective. I consider quarterly results "noisy" and focus on long-term trends.

GOVT TO LOOK INTO NEED TO EXTEND PROGRESSIVE WAGE POLICY INCENTIVE - RAFIZI

According to Economy Minister Rafizi Ramli, the government will look into the need to extend the incentive for employers under the Progressive Wage Policy (PWP) from 12 months to 24 months to enable employers to benefit from high productivity and skilled workers under the programme. He said that this was based on the impact assessment made of the pilot project which was carried out from June to August 2024.

The pilot project was to see how the system operates, as well as to get feedback. This is to ensure that the learning curve that was put in the implementation approach is as best as possible. He was speaking during a town hall session on the PWP.

An allocation of RM50 million has been set aside for the implementation of the PWP pilot project, which began last June, including incentive payments to 1,000 employers. The extension of the incentive for employers is expected to be implemented in October.

At the same time, he noted that employers should not view the PWP as an additional cost, because it is actually aimed at accelerating the improvement of workers' skills in small and medium enterprises. These skilled workers will be able to handle complicated matters to create value to their companies.

THE CONCERNING RISE OF FINFLUENCERS

The rise of "Finfluencers" on social media has made financial advice more accessible and engaging, especially for Gen Z. However, concerns over misinformation, fraud, and unlicensed advice have prompted global regulatory crackdowns, including actions by SC Malaysia. As Finfluencing grows, public prudence and vigilant regulation are crucial.

SCROLL, LIKE, INVEST? NAVIGATING THE WORLD OF FINFLUENCERS

In an age where smartphones are ubiquitous and social media platforms are our daily companions, finding someone who has yet to be exposed to the digital world is almost impossible. From Instagram to TikTok, social media has seamlessly integrated into our lives, shaping how we communicate, consume information, and manage our finances. Among the many trends of this digital revolution is the rise of "finfluencers"—social media influencers who specialise in financial advice. These digital personalities have made learning about finance more accessible and engaging, especially for new retail investors. However, as with any trend, some pitfalls and challenges come with the territory.

Imagine scrolling through your favourite social media feed and stumbling upon a short, snappy video explaining the intricacies of stock markets or cryptocurrency investments using catchy memes and metaphors. It is fun and engaging and makes complex financial topics easy to digest. This is the magic of finfluencers. They break down daunting financial jargon into bite-sized, entertaining content that resonates with the layman. This has been a gateway to financial literacy for many, especially younger audiences.

A survey conducted by CreditCards.com in March 2021 revealed that Gen Z—those born between 1997 and 2012—are almost five times more likely to seek financial advice from social media platforms than those aged 41 and above. This is consistent with the findings of Malaysia’s Institute of Capital Market Research (ICMR), where 69% of Gen Z rely on the internet or online sources such as Facebook, Instagram and blogs.

Source: The Rise of Millennial and Gen Z Investors: Trends, Opportunities and Challenges for Malaysia by the Institute of Capital Market Research (ICMR)

This trend may be attributed to the lack of formal financial education in schools and the relatively taboo nature of money conversations in many households. With its informal and engaging style, social media has filled this gap, making financial discussions more accessible and less intimidating.

However, the rise of finfluencers has also brought about challenges and risks. While these influencers have democratised access to financial knowledge, the quality of advice can vary significantly. Unlike traditional financial advisors bound by regulations and codes of ethics, many finfluencers operate in a grey area where the line between genuine advice and entertainment can be blurry. This lack of regulation has raised concerns about misinformation, fraud, and the potential exploitation of followers.

DISCLAIMERS AND LEGAL ACCOUNTABILITY

Anyone who has spent time on finance-related social media content is familiar with disclaimers like "This is not investment advice" or "This is not a buy or sell call". These statements are meant to protect finfluencers from legal liability. However, simply adding a disclaimer does not absolve them of responsibility under the law.

The Securities Commission Malaysia (SC Malaysia) has been particularly vigilant in addressing the growing influence of finfluencers in the financial space. Recognising the potential risks, SC Malaysia recently updated its Guidance Note on the Provision of Investment Advice, emphasising that investment advice is regulated under Malaysian securities laws and requires proper licensing. This move aims to protect market integrity and ensure the information being disseminated is reliable.

One of the key clarifications in the updated guidance is the distinction between general sharing of information and actual investment advice. Sharing factual information about an investment product, educational content, or personal experiences does not typically require a licence. However, if a finfluencer provides recommendations or opinions that could induce the public to take specific actions—such as buying, selling, or holding financial products—that activity could be considered investment advice and would require proper licensing.

Moreover, SC Malaysia highlighted that if finfluencers derive financial benefits from their activities, such as income from ad revenue, referral rewards, or affiliate marketing, they may be considered as carrying on a business. This would subject them to further regulatory scrutiny. The penalties for engaging in unlicensed regulated activities are severe, including fines of up to RM10 million, imprisonment of up to ten years, or both, under the Capital Markets and Services Act 2007 (CMSA 2007).

THE IMPACT OF FINFLUENCERS ON RETAIL INVESTORS

The influence of finfluencers on retail investors cannot be overstated. The COVID-19 pandemic saw a significant surge in retail participation in financial markets. In Malaysia, retail participation in Bursa Malaysia increased by 236% compared to 2019, with a corresponding 167% increase in new Central Depository System (CDS) accounts. Many new investors, confined to their homes and seeking new ways to generate income, turned to social media for financial guidance.

However, not all guidance was created equal. Some unlicensed investment gurus began offering stock tips and investment advice through various channels, including seminars and private messaging groups. In many cases, these individuals charged subscription fees for access to exclusive content, including buy, sell, and cut-loss calls for specific stocks. This setup violated securities laws and exposed investors to the risk of market manipulation schemes, such as "pump and dump." In these schemes, influencers hype up certain stocks to inflate their prices, only to sell their shares at a profit, leaving their followers with worthless stocks.

SC Malaysia has been proactive in combating these illegal activities. Between 2020 and 2023, the commission issued 31 cease-and-desist notices, blocked 29 websites and added 53 names to its Investor Alert List. Last year, SC Malaysia reprimanded and fined three individuals RM808,516 for breach of section 58 of the CMSA 2007 for providing investment advice concerning securities without holding a CMSL. In another notable case in 2022, three individuals were reprimanded and fined RM9.07 million for the same breach. These actions highlight the severe consequences of engaging in unlicensed financial advisory activities and underscore the importance of regulatory oversight.

GLOBAL CRACKDOWNS ON FINFLUENCERS

Globally, regulatory bodies have been closely monitoring the activities of financial influencers, recognising the potential risks they pose to investors. In the UK, the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) has been proactive in addressing these challenges. The FCA took significant action by charging nine social media influencers with promoting unauthorized foreign exchange trading schemes. These influencers, who had a combined Instagram following of 4.5 million, were accused of running unauthorised investment schemes and issuing unauthorised financial promotions.

This landmark case marked the first time the FCA prosecuted influencers for breaches related to financial promotions, underscoring the importance of regulatory frameworks in protecting investors from misleading and potentially harmful advice. To further address these issues, the FCA plans to extend its existing guidance to tackle the surge in non-compliant social media advertisements, particularly those targeting younger audiences.

In response to similar challenges, financial regulators in the European Union and the United States are also proposing new rules to regulate how financial products are promoted on social media platforms. The European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA) has initiated a common supervisory action to ensure adherence to MiFID II requirements on marketing communications, focusing on transparency and protecting unsophisticated investors.

In the United States, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has taken notable actions against influencers promoting high-risk products, such as crypto assets. Cases like Kim Kardashian's US$1.26 million fine for promoting EMAX token without proper disclosure highlight the SEC's commitment to regulating this space. The SEC's updated marketing rule and the Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) endorsement guidelines reflect a broader effort to manage the growing trend of influencer marketing, ensuring investors are adequately informed of the material risks involved. These global crackdowns serve as a stark reminder of the responsibilities tied to offering financial advice and the necessity for robust regulatory oversight.

THE FUTURE OF FINFLUENCING: A CALL FOR PRUDENCE AND VIGILANCE

As the influencers industry grows, so does the need for greater oversight and accountability. While finfluencers can democratise financial advice and make complex topics more accessible, they also pose significant risks, particularly to inexperienced investors. SC Malaysia and other regulatory bodies worldwide increasingly focus on this space, aiming to balance innovation and investor protection.

The best approach for the public is one of prudence and vigilance. It's crucial to approach social media content with a critical eye and not take everything at face value. Individuals should consult multiple sources before making any financial decisions, seek professional advice, and conduct their own research.

The rise of finfluencers represents a fascinating intersection of finance and digital media. While they offer a new and engaging way to learn about money, they also present challenges that regulators and the public must navigate carefully. As this trend continues to evolve, the public should exercise prudence and vigilance when consuming financial-related content online. So, what is the rule of thumb? Always take what you see on social media with a pinch of salt.
