Is NAIM Holdings an investment opportunity?

SUMMARY

- NAIM Holdings Bhd (5073.MY) (NAIM or the Group) is an integrated player focused on the property development, construction, and oil & gas sectors. Despite its diversification, NAIM's performance over the past 12 years has been poor with declining revenue and volatile, declining PAT.

Disclaimer: This article is written for informational purposes only. It does not constitute a solicitation, offer, advice, counseling or recommendation to buy or sell. As such it is not intended to promote the purchase of shares in any way. As a reminder, any type of asset has a risk factor and needs to be evaluated from multiple perspectives. Therefore, any investment decision and the associated risk remains with the investor. The views expressed here are entirely the writer's own.

- NAIM's property and construction segments underperformed relative to the industry. Despite this, NAIM maintains a strong financial position with significant cash reserves and low debt.
- The company's market valuation suggests a margin of safety. But much of this is attributed to non-operating assets like revaluation surplus and investments in Dayang.

INVESTMENT THESIS

NAIM's performance over the past 12 years was nothing to shout about. Earnings were volatile and declining. Its average returns were lower than its cost of funds. I attributed its poor performance to the soft Malaysian property and construction sectors as well as the problems it faced with its investment in Dayang, an oilfield services company. I do not expect the property and construction sectors to be soft forever. At the same time, a conservative valuation based on its historical performance provided more than a 30% margin of safety. But a bit part of the margin of safety came from its investment in Dayang. As such if you are going to invest in NAIM, you should also analyse the oil & gas sector.

BACKGROUND

NAIM started in 1995 with its landmark property development in Miri. The Group then ventured into construction in 1997. The Group is today a fully integrated property and construction player. It focuses on integrated property developments, construction, civil engineering, oil and gas, and infrastructure projects. It also provides oil and gas services through its investment in Dayang Enterprise Holdings Bhd (Dayang) which in turn has a controlling interest in Perdana Petroleum Bhd (Perdana).

While there are some overlapping socio-economic factors such as general economic conditions, the primary drivers for the property, construction, and oil & gas sectors are distinct due to the nature of their markets and specific industry dynamics. As such you would have thought that NAIM would have a “stable” performance given its diversified businesses. But this was not the case.

OPERATING TRENDS

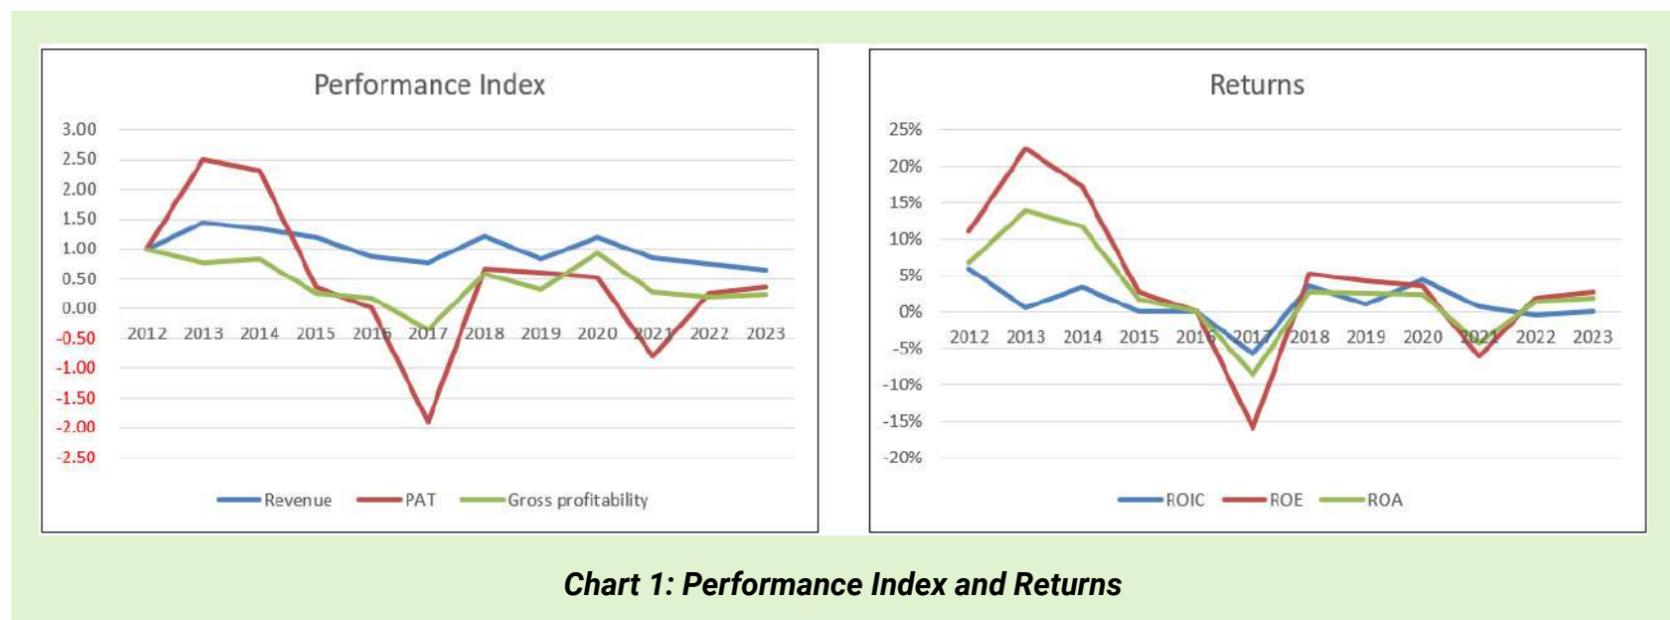

Over the past 12 years, NAIM’s revenue has been declining. Refer to the left part of Chart 1. To be fair, the revenue did not include the revenue from its oil & gas business as its investment in Dayang is accounted for as a “share of associates’ results”. As such it may be more meaningful to focus on the PAT, which included the oil & gas results. As can be seen, PAT was volatile with a declining trend. The Group incurred losses in 2017 and 2021.

- The 2017 loss was the result of the cost overrun for its MRT station construction project. There was also a significant deterioration in the share of results of Dayang.
- The loss in 2021 was mainly due to impairment losses from Dayang and Perdana.

The PAT impacted its returns as shown in the right part of Chart 1. Over the past 12 years,

- ROIC ranged from negative 6% to 6% with an average of 1%.
- ROE ranged from negative 16% to 22% with an average of 4%.

These are not good returns considering that they were lower than the 6% WACC and 7% cost of equity. It suggests that NIAM did not create shareholders’ value over the past 12 years.

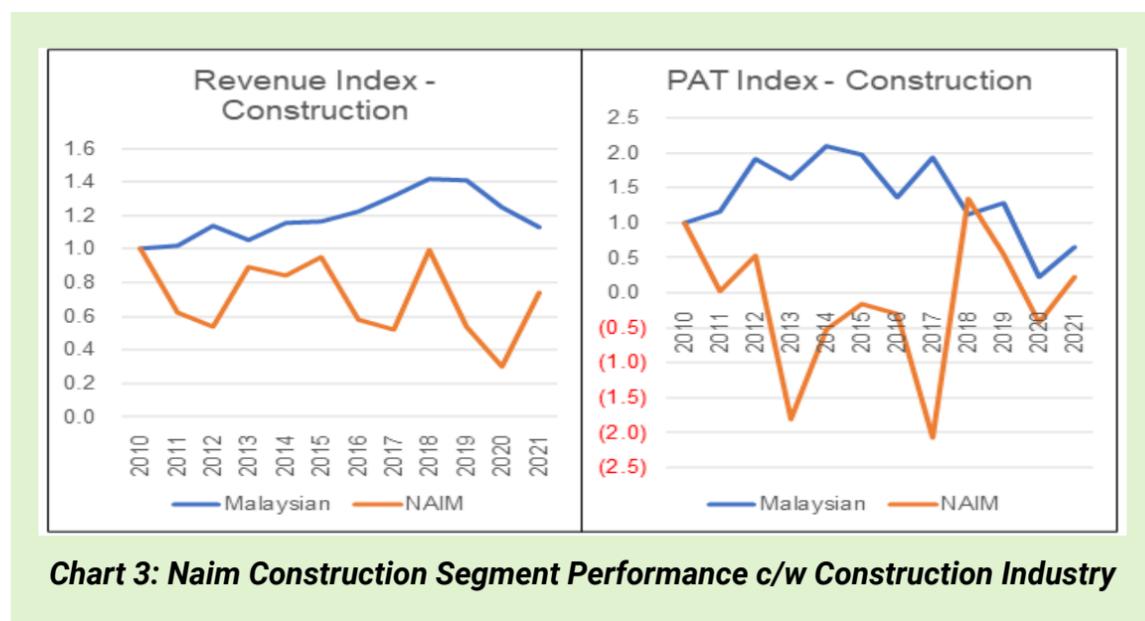

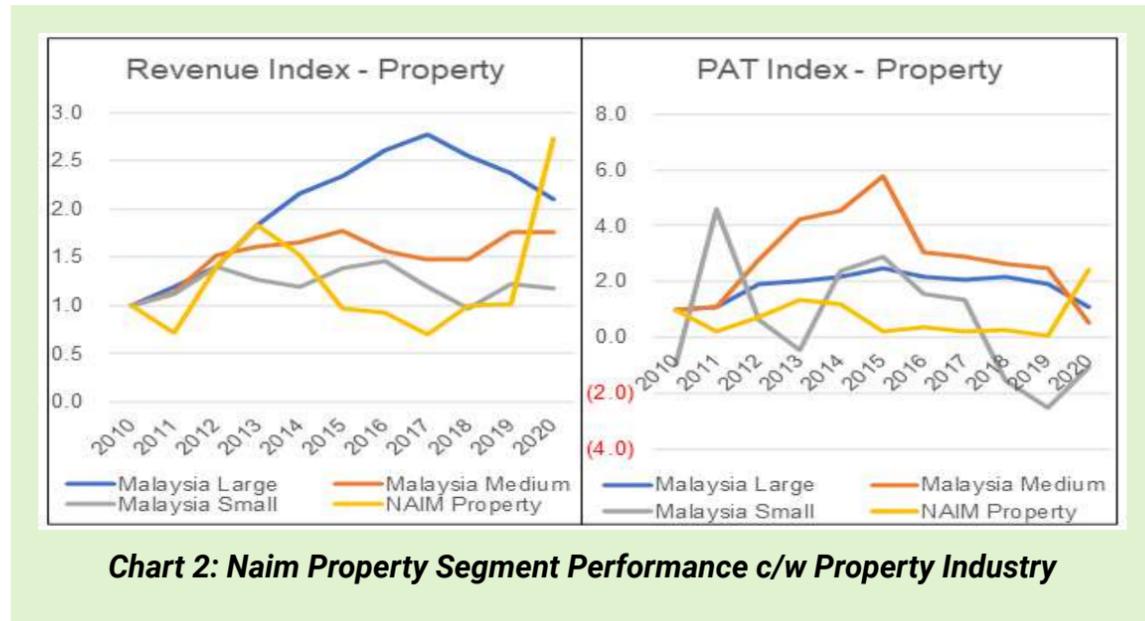

PEER COMPARISON

The majority of the Group’s revenue came from the property and construction segments. Both the Malaysian property and construction sectors have been facing soft markets over the past few years. This started even before the Covid-19 pandemic. Both sectors are cyclical and today we probably have reached the bottom of the current cycle. NAIM’s property and construction segment performance would probably follow that of the Malaysian market.

How did NAIM perform compared to the property and construction sector? To assess this, I compared NAIM’s property and construction segments’ performances with the respective industry performances. Refer to Charts 2 and 3. Note that for the industry, I used the average values.

- Looking at Chart 2, I would rate the Naim property segment performance as below average. The sector revenue performance peaked sometime in 2015/17. NAIM’s revenue peaked in 2013. Note that NAIM’s performance in 2020 was boosted by a land sale.
- NAIM construction segment revenue did worse than the Malaysian construction sector average revenue. Refer to Chart

3. While the sector revenue had grown and generally was better than the 2005 revenue, the same could not be said for NAIM. NAIM construction segment PAT also performed worse than the Malaysian construction sector average PAT. NAIM even had 6 years of losses.

FINANCIAL POSITION

Despite the lacklustre performance, I would rate NAIM as financially OK. This was because while it had some negative points, there were balancing positive points. The positive side included the following.

- As of the end of Mar 2024, it had RM211 million in cash and short-term securities. This was equivalent to 12% of its total assets.
- It had a debt-equity ratio of 0.14 as of Mar 2024. This has come down from its 2017 high of 0.48.

- The Group also had a reasonable capital allocation plan as shown in Table 1. You can see that its cash flow from operations was well deployed for CAPEX.

Item	Sources RM m	Uses RM m
Cash flow from Ops	286
New shares	119
Sale of investments'	299
Net Debt		151
Net CAPEX & acquisition		177
Dividends		131
Buybacks		0
Others and Cash		245
Total	704	704

Table 1: Sources and Uses of Funds 2012 to 2023

The main negative point was its poor cash conversion ratio. Over the past 12 years, it generated RM256 million cash flow from operations. This is a poor cash conversion ratio when compared to the total RM565 million PAT achieved during the past 12 years.

VALUATION

My valuation of NAIM is summarized in Chart 4.

- I estimated its Asset Value as RM2.61 per share
- I estimated its Earnings Value as RM2.67 per share.

The market price for NAIM as of 14 Jun 2024 was RM1.48 per share. You can see that there is more than a 30% margin of safety under both bases.

VALUATION MODEL

My Earnings Value of the company was derived based on the average values from 2 valuation approaches:

- Free Cash Flow to the Firm model as per Damodaran.
- Residual Income model as per Penman.

For both models, I used the past 12 years' time-weighted average value to represent the normalized value. The cost of capital used in the model was based on the Capital Asset Pricing Model. I followed Damodaran's approach to determine the Beta and the risk premiums. These resulted in a 7.5% cost of equity and a 6.5% WACC.

Note that part of the reason for the high Earnings Value is because it included RM1.65 per share of non-operating assets. These comprise cash, revaluation surplus, and excess land for development.

- NAIM had investment properties recognized in its books at RM69 million compared to its fair market value of RM170 million. I included this surplus as part of the non-operating assets.
- Its investment in Dayang accounted for about half of the non-operating assets.

If you ignore these non-operating assets, there will not be any margin of safety. In other words, the margin of safety did not come from its operations.

CONCLUSION

NAIM's performance over the past 12 years is nothing to shout about. If you believe that its future is going to be the same as the past, then this is not an investment opportunity. But if you think that the past was coloured by the soft Malaysian property and construction market and the future would be better, you might consider NAIM. This is because I do not expect the property and construction sectors to remain soft forever.

While there is currently more than a 30% margin of safety based on its historical performance, a big part of the margin of safety under the Earnings Value was contributed by the non-operating assets. These in turn came from its revaluation surplus, cash, and investments in Dayang. If you are going to invest in NAIM, you should have a better understanding of the prospects of Dayang.

As a property and construction company, I expect NAIM's performance to improve. But I think that the oil & gas sector is currently near its peak and I would not expect more upside.

In considering NAIM you should also evaluate the oil & gas sector.

In summary, if you are going to invest in NAIM, it must be because you believe that:

- The property and construction segments are going to do better than the past.
- The oil & gas sector will continue to be strong.

I am a long-term value investor who has held onto stocks for more than 5 years. My analysis and valuation are from such a perspective. I consider quarterly results "noisy" and focus on long-term trends.

INCREASE IN LEADING INDEX INDICATES MALAYSIAN ECONOMY'S GROWTH MOMENTUM INTACT

A ccording to DOSM Chief Statistician Datuk Seri Dr Mohd Uzir Mahidin, the Malaysian Economic Indicators Leading (LI), Coincident (CI) & Lagging (LI) Indexes for April 2024 indicates significant turning points in the business cycle and the direction of the country's economy in the near term.

The Leading Index (LI) for Malaysia continued to increase 4.3% in April 2024, achieving 113.1 points as against 108.4 points in the previous year. The fifth consecutive month of increases suggests that the economy remained in a growing momentum.

Improvements were observed in all components except for Real Imports of Semiconductors (-1.5%).

After a marginal decline of 0.5% in March 2024, the monthly change of LI bounced back by 0.8% in April 2024. This turnaround was contributed by the rising Number of Housing Units Approved (0.8%), Real Imports of Semi-Conductors (0.2%) and the Number of New Companies Registered (0.2%). Looking at the trend in April 2024, the LI remained above 100 points, reflecting continued economic growth in the coming months supported by robust domestic demand and a sustainable expansion of the Manufacturing and Services sectors.

The Coincident Index (CI) which measures the overall current economic performance, rose by 3.0% in April 2024, reaching 125.4 points as compared to 121.7 points in the same month of the previous year. The continued double-digit increase in the Real Contributions to Employees Provident Fund (34.1%) was the main contributor to this rise. Referring to the monthly performance, the CI also increased by 0.3% primarily backed by the increase in the Total Employment in Manufacturing (0.2%).

S&P AFFIRMS MALAYSIA'S SOVEREIGN RATINGS AT A-, OUTLOOK 'STABLE'

According to S&P Global Ratings in a statement, Malaysia's sovereign ratings is affirmed at A- and a "stable" outlook, citing steady growth and potential modest fiscal improvements. Malaysia is set to benefit from a strong global semiconductor recovery, reinforcing medium-term growth prospects.

Political stability, meanwhile, is leading to a more conducive policymaking, allowing gradual stabilisation of government finances. The stable outlook reflects its expectations that Malaysia's steady growth momentum and strong external position, alongside narrowing deficits, will hold over the next two years.

This year, the government is targeting to narrow its budget gap as a proportion of economic output to 4.3% from 5% last year. Malaysia has been trying to shrink a long-running fiscal deficit that stretches back to the 1998 Asian Financial Crisis. Most recently, the government has introduced a slew of measures ranging from trimming subsidies to imposing additional taxes in a bid to fix its weakened finances. The key is the withdrawal of subsidies for fuel and other non-essential items widely panned by economists for being wasteful.

Malaysia's fiscal deficits is expected to narrow on the back of planned subsidy rationalisation measures, the phased implementation of which has begun. Although the fiscal position remains weak, it is improving with economic recovery on track and a more stable policy environment.

S&P is projecting Malaysia's economic growth to recover to 4.3% this year through higher exports and robust private sector investments. That compares to the official projection of 4%-5% growth this year. In the first quarter, GDP grew 4.2% year-on-year. On its part, the government is banking on external demand and higher tourist arrivals to bolster consumer spending and business investments.

Malaysia's solid external position is a rating strength drawing comfort from consistent current account surpluses for more than two decades. The current account surplus is forecasted to stabilise around 2.3% of GDP over the next three years. Further, Malaysia's institutions have supported "generally effective policymaking for a long time" and the depth of institutional strength mitigates the risk of political instability.

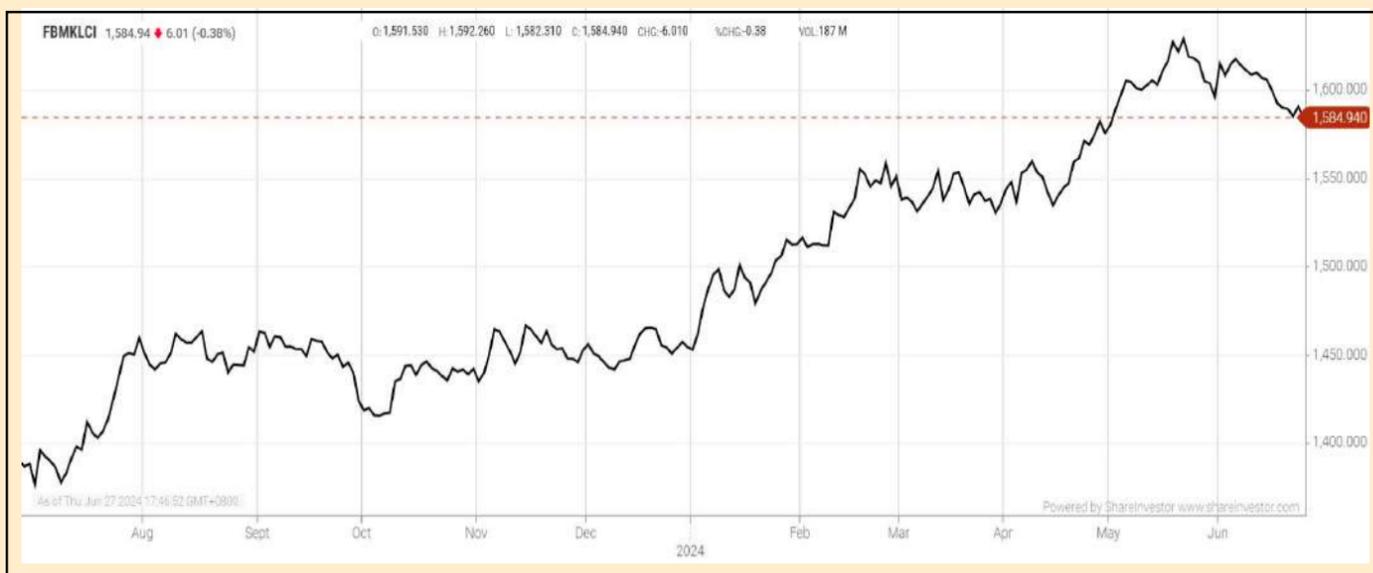

The current coalition government led by Datuk Seri Anwar Ibrahim appears to have reached some degree of political stability which has resulted in a "more favourable policymaking environment which has enabled economic reforms and fiscal consolidation to gain traction.

PROPERTY MARKET BOOM: CAUTION AMID JS-SEZ AND DATA CENTRE FRENZY

KEY HIGHLIGHTS

- The remarkable ascent in the property index and share prices of property counters are attributed to the announcement of the Johor-Singapore Special Economic Zone (JS-SEZ) and, subsequently, burgeoning interest from tech and data centre players in Johor.
- Amid this optimism, investors must balance their enthusiasm with prudence. One must exercise caution in this current bullish property stock sentiment.

By MSWG Team

As of 31 May 2024, the Bursa Malaysia Property Index has notably outperformed most indices with a 26.24% gain year-to-date. It stands as the second best-performing sector after the Construction Index. As of 14 June 2024, the index closed at 1,137.31 points, the highest since April 2018. The remarkable ascent in the property index, driven by rising share prices of property counters, is attributed to a few factors, primarily revolving around the announcement of the Johor-Singapore Special Economic Zone (JS-SEZ) and, subsequently, burgeoning interest from tech and data centre players in Johor.

JS-SEZ AND DATA CENTRE THEME AT PLAY

The JS-SEZ is envisioned to bolster economic cooperation and integration between Malaysia and Singapore, driving substantial investments into Johor. This strategic initiative has triggered a wave of optimism among investors and developers alike, propelling property stocks to new heights. Since the announcement, there has been a noticeable uptick in share prices of developers with substantial landbank and exposure in Johor. This enthusiasm is further fueled by the concurrent rise of the data centre industry in the region.

In the first half of 2024, companies like Google, Microsoft, and Bytedance committed billions of dollars to building data centres, cloud, and AI infrastructure in Malaysia. So far, Johor has been the hotspot for setting up data centres in Malaysia, with reportedly 12 companies operating 14 data centre facilities across the state, according to data centre information portal Baxter.

At the same time, data centre players are busy scooping up land in Johor, benefitting developers such as Crescendo Corporation Berhad, UEM Sunrise Berhad, and Eco World Development Group Berhad. They are riding on rising demand for land to build data centre, adding millions of gains into their coffer.

Notably, Johor-based Crescendo has sold about 150 acres of land for data centre-related development, bringing sales of about RM790 million since November 2023. Collectively, Crescendo pocketed RM462.3 million in estimated gains from land sales. Its share prices touched a record high of RM3.95 on 12 June 2024. AS of 20 June 2024, share prices of Crescendo have risen by 164.5% since 1 November 2023.

UEM Sunrise and Eco World are also joining the selling spree. They recently disposed of 28.9 and 123.14 acres of land to an unnamed global data centre player and Microsoft for RM144.9 million and RM402.3 million, respectively. UEM Sunrise touched its five-year high of RM1.28 on 20 May 2024. It closed at RM1.12 on 20 June. Meanwhile, share prices of Eco World have gained 50.4% YTD; it closed at RM1.58 on 20 June.

ONE AFTER ANOTHER JOINING THE BANDWAGON

Apart from selling land, developers like UEM Sunrise, Mah Sing Group Berhad, and Sime Darby Property Berhad (SDP) have announced their respective plans to set up data centres, joining many players who have already started building data centres in Klang Valley and Johor. For instance, SDP will develop and lease a hyperscale data centre worth RM2 billion at Elmina Business Park.

Amid the hype, it is alarming to see that Jakel Group, better known for its textile business, is also joining the bandwagon to build a data centre. It recently teamed up with PiDC Holdings Sdn Bhd to build a 51MW Tier III data centre in Cyberjaya worth RM1.2 billion. Prior to this, Jakel had a limited footprint in the real estate space. Its latest real estate project was J.Satine – a joint-venture mixed development comprising residential, SOHO, and retail elements in Setapak, Kuala Lumpur.

Unapologetically, this scenario reminds us of the glove manufacturing craze in 2020. Drawn by skyrocketed demand and prices, numerous PLCs ventured into glove production one after another, though many without the necessary expertise nor the ability to execute. Subsequently, oversupply ensued, and the average selling prices plunged, and the rest is history.

TREAD CAUTIOUSLY WHILE REMAINING OPTIMISTIC

the associated enthusiasm for property counters in Johor reflect a dynamic and evolving market landscape. The JS-SEZ and the data centre boom have undoubtedly created new catalysts for growth and investment. However, amid this optimism, investors must balance their enthusiasm with prudence. According to the National Property Information Centre's (NAPIC) latest quarterly report, the Malaysian property market is yet to be out of the woods.

Notably, the overhang situation in the serviced apartment segment worsened in Q12024, with a 9.2% increase in unsold units at 21,913 units with a combined value of RM18.16 billion compared to 20,825 units at RM16.63 billion in the preceding quarter. Johor and Kuala Lumpur have the highest number of overhang properties at 13,027 units and 4,501 units, respectively.

One must exercise caution in this current bullish property stock sentiment. It is crucial to thoroughly evaluate the fundamentals of the companies involved, their track records, and their strategic plans for sustainable growth. Blindly following market trends without understanding the underlying dynamics can lead to significant financial losses. At the moment, landowners, construction companies, and infrastructure providers are the biggest beneficiaries of this data centre craze. However, sooner or later, the hype will inevitably taper off when supply outstrips demand. At that point, the invisible hand will take its course to restore the market to equilibrium.

As a perspective, an April 2024 report by market research firm Arizton highlighted that Malaysia has 34 existing data centres and 33 new facilities in the pipeline. If it takes years for the market to absorb the existing capacity, will it take a similar amount of time to take up the new space? Only time will tell.
